Holiday Tours, European Style, Take You Away

by Guy Pitzer

Anxious to use some of that accumulated leave over the Christmas holidays while visiting the popular cities and countryside in Europe? If your pocket books say "Nein" to a jet flight home, check the fantastic offers from the tours agencies servicing the Berlin area. You'll discover a cheap and relaxing way to enjoy the holidays European style.

Using only four days (Dec. 23-26), you can treat yourself to an escorted tour by deluxe motor coach to Paris for only $51.95. You leave Berlin the evening of Dec. 22 and arrive at Frankfurt the following morning only to depart immediately for Paris.

Once there, you can groove with the charm and elegance characteristic of the Champs-Elysees, or catch the historical splendor of the Notre Dame cathedral. A few steps away stands the impressive and lighted Arch of Triumph surrounded by converging roadways like spokes on a hub. It's an experience to take up a corner position and watch the wild-driving Parisians deftly maneuver for the advantage position.

So Much to See

If you can't schedule the elegant Eiffel Tower, the colorful nightly excitement of Pigalle and the Latin Quarter, or the Louvre Museum into the first day, don't panic. You have two full days of organized sightseeing to engulf the spirit of Paris.

Included in the price are transportation, three nights lodging with breakfasts, one dinner, excursion to Versailles, and a visit to a champagne factory. The booking deadline for this tour is Dec. 14, so get that leave approved and contact either American Express or AG Special Services for reservations.

Silent Night, Holy Night can become a near reality if you should choose the tour to Wagrain, Austria. This snow-clad mountain village of Austria, the death-place of Joseph Mohr (creator of Silent Night, Holy Night), offers numerous opportunities to enjoy the charm of a real "winter wonderland". For five days, Dec. 21-25, the total price of $79 guarantees all meals and lodging with several excursions thrown in as a special Christmas package.

Christmas Bavarian Style

There will be sleigh rides into the quiet valleys, Tyrolian entertainment, and chairlift rides to the "Berghof" giving a panorama of snowcapped mountain peaks rising into the sky. For an additional $6, you can take the "The Silent Night Chapel" tour to Oberndorf where the song was created. That evening a special Christmas Dinner will await you under the lit-up tree. Santa Claus will be there with presents for everyone.

On the final day, several hours will be devoted for sightseeing in Salzburg, the festival city, with lunch provided. For detail on this tour, contact Special Services. With a featured line up as generous as Wagrain, and a reduction for children travelling with parents, the reservations could soon be complete.

If leave time is precious around the Christmas days, then look forward to the New Year's weekend. Usher in the new year by celebrating a week-end in Copenhagen, Zurich, or on the Baltic Sea.

Copenhagen

Special Services is offering a deluxe motor coach to Copenhagen Dec. 29-Jan. 1 for only $49.95. You can board the bus at Frankfurt, IG Farben Bldg., Friday at 5:30 p.m. and relax the entire route to Copenhagen. There you'll enjoy two overnight lodgings, two breakfasts, and a sight-seeing tour of the city renowned for the Mermaid on the Rock which keeps a watchful eye on the harbor. Copenhagen boasts of the unique Tivoli Gardens where one can venture for hours and never see the same place twice. Some of the best girl watching can be accomplished in this Danish city and you need not take a walk through sailors' quarters to find out.

Jet Party to Zurich

Interested in jetting to Zurich for your New Year's party? AG Special Services has details on a non-stop-flight which leaves Tempelhof Dec. 29 and returns Jan. 1, 1973. Included in the complete price of $128 are the round-trip flight, three nights lodging, three breakfasts, New Year's party with dinner, orchestra, show, dancing, and an excursion tour to Arosa. There will also be plenty of time to inspect the quaint shops lining the river bank. There is a special bargain price of $86 which includes lodging only. Checks with the Tours Office for your reservations.

Baltic Sea Trip

For a New Year's fling with a different twist, welcome the coming year while sailing the Baltic Sea. AG Special Services has information concerning a four day excursion for $87 which includes roundtrip transportation by bus and ship, overnight accommodation aboard in two bedcabins, one overnight at the hotel in Göteborg, three breakfasts, one dinner, New Year's Eve dinner, a Hotelplan guide throughout, and all the services and tips.

You'll depart Frankfurt, IG Farben Bldg., Dec. 29 at 7:15 a.m. for Kiel. There you will board ship and begin to enjoy the warm, friendly Swedish atmosphere and hospitality with entertainment and dancing in the bar while the ship brings you through the Baltic Sea to Göteborg. There time will be allowed for a city-sight-seeing tour and shopping trips.

Sunday features the New Year's celebration with a formal goodbye to 1972. Monday begins the departure for Kiel where an air conditioned bus will provide the transportation to Frankfurt. Once again, make your bookings with AG Special Services well in advance.

Brigade Climbers Leave For Swiss Expedition

by Pat Tracey

"Go to the mountains! Climb the heights and seek the quietness and the freedom of the surrounding hills."

And go they will, as six men from the Berlin Brigade have been patiently preparing themselves for their challenge. The object of the Berlin Mountaineers adventure training expedition on the first of December is the Canton of Bern in west central Switzerland. Here, the jumble of great peaks, deep valleys, and snow covered glaciers form the heart of the Alps known as the Bernese Oberland. The area is dominated by the ultimate goal of the mountaineers, that lofty triumvirate; the Mönch (13,449 feet), the Eiger (13,026 feet), and the Jungfrau (13,642 feet) Mountains. Their colorful names translated mean the Monk, the Ogre, and the Virgin, respectively.

The strenuous climbs in the Bernese Oberland take on an even greater degree of difficulty once the winter storms cover the slopes with slick ice and snow. The snow conditions of the summit ridges are alien, hostile places for man. The cold and the sharp winds are the only true masters of the high peaks. Each man can only challenge temporarily these elements and in this challenge find the extent of his strengths and his weaknesses.

"Why do You go?"

The first climber was asked upon return of his pioneering ascent, "why did you go?" His answer was probably similar to that of Sir George L. Mallory, last seen walking into the clouds near the top of Mt. Everest, when asked "What is the use of climbing . . .?" He answered, "It is no use." "So, if you cannot understand that there is something in man which responds to the challenge of this mountain and goes out to meet it, that the struggle of life itself upward and forever upward, then you won't see why we go."

The climbing in the Alps, while not in the league of Everest, is more than just demanding. An ascent involves an early rising at three in the morning, dressing, eating, and then an early start using headlights by four at the latest. The peaks must be scaled during the early hours of the morning and the return made prior to the warming of the snow fields by the wind and sun. The very real danger of a snow avalanche and the collapse of snow bridges make the late afternoon the greatest danger period of the day. Storms also seem to choose the afternoon to unleash their destruction upon the mountains.

The mountaineer needs wisdom, both in planning his route, in estimating his reserves, and in overcoming the unexpected. The feeling of "trust" takes on new meaning when the man who belays your rope is actually holding your life in his hand in the form of a slender strand of woven nylon. All these pieces of information had to become second nature to the men through practice, for ability is the climber's only form of safety.

Practice and Preparation Make Perfect

Prior planning also affects the outcome of any sustained effort, but ever so much in the work of the mountaineer. Preparations for the trip were finalized as the men practiced rock climbing in the Harz Mountains over the past several months. The desire grew from these initial weekend trips, the last of which provided the "shakedown" trip in late November, which was complete with ice and snow on the faces of the Harz Mountains.

The men used their time in Berlin to practice roping methods and covered climbing technique in informal classwork. Meeting during the evenings, equipment lists were checked, meals planned and food packaged for easy handling, and climbing gear distributed and stowed safely inside rucksacks. Some equipment was made available from the Berlin Brigade for the use of Accident experience shows that driving in winter is much more dangerous than at any other time of year, USAREUR Provost Marshal officials caution. They pass along the following tips for the winter driver:

- Adjust your driving to weather and road conditions.
- After the vehicle starts to move, get the "feel of the road"; start and stop gradually on slippery roads.
- Drive in a way that will minimize the need for sudden braking. Remember that braking distances on ice or packed snow are 3 to 12 times greater than on pavement.
- Allow for increased stopping distance.
- Allow other motorists a wide margin of safety; they will also be having difficulty with traction.
- Except slippery road surfaces around every curve, on bridges, in shaded areas, when passing to a different type of road surface, and when the sun goes down.
- Give signals for the benefit of other drivers; remember that poor weather and road conditions also affect their stopping and slowing distances.
- Use snow tires or chains for increased safety on icy or snowy roads.

Mexican-Americans In U.S. Army

Mexican-Americans have valiantly served the United States in various military campaigns throughout the history of this country since New Mexico became a part of the U. S.

During the Civil War, Mexican-Americans divided their allegiance between the North and the South. Many of these new Americans, remembering their defeat at the hands of the Texans who were now a part of the Confederacy, fought for the Union while others served the Confederacy. Later, some of the Mexican-Americans who had joined the Confederacy defected to the Union Army.

Following the Civil War, many Mexican-Americans joined various militia organizations. These organizations protected the new state of New Mexico from rustlers and other bandits who were terrorizing the area.

Rough Riders

When the Spanish-American War began, Mexican-Americans again volunteered to serve their country as members of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders. Their skill in handling horses and rifles while on horseback was invaluable. After the war, many of those veterans returned to their home state and joined the New Mexico National Guard. Mexican bandits were raiding America's borders and, in 1916, the Guard was mobilized and served under General John J. Pershing as members of his Punitive Expedition.

World War II

By the beginning of World War II, Mexican-Americans had distinguished themselves as soldiers. Many Spanish-speaking soldiers valiantly served in Sicily as a part of the 45th Division. They were originally a part of a New Mexico outfit, most of whom were lost in Bataan.

Company B, 141st Regiment of the 36th (Texas) Division was also a part of the European campaign. The entire company was made up of Spanish-speaking soldiers and, in 1944, Company E spearheaded crossing of the Rapido River. The crossing of the river was later abandoned but afterwards, many Germans stated that they were amazed at the performance of those Americans.

Through the years, Spanish-surnamed Americans have performed numerous deeds of personal bravery in combat. For this service, almost 40 of these Americans have been awarded the Medal of Honor in the last 50 years.

Cesar Chavez

by SP5 Mike Miller

Born in 1927, Chavez was raised on a small farm owned by his father. When that farm failed, the whole family picked up and went to California. They had dreams of earning enough money to start on their own again. Their hopes were crushed as they entered the ranks of the Mexican migratory workers.

As a young man, Chavez became active in the Community Service Organization in Los Angeles, where he quickly rose to General Director, working to organize the community to help itself out of the effects of poverty. In 1961 he left the cities to organize the National Farm Workers Association, a union of migrant workers. Running on a tiny budget and after nine years of struggle by his followers, Chavez finally succeeded with the settlement of the Delano Grape Strike in his favor.

For the first time in U. S. history migratory workers were recognized in a legal union. This achievement meant better, although inadequate, wages and conditions for farm workers, and was won entirely by non-violent means, in an area where nearly every major U. S. Labor organization had failed.

Alice--Is He or Isn't She?

Alice Cooper, master of space and time, was at the Deutschlandhalle last Friday evening and I doubt that anyone who saw the concert will ever be the same again.

It is very difficult to explain to a person who wasn't at the concert just what Alice Cooper is trying to represent or how he is trying to represent himself.

To any "normal" person someone like Alice Cooper would seem very strange, and perhaps that is exactly the reason why he draws such rave reviews. Perhaps our society is twisted to the extent that we have come to accept the surrealistic as normal, or perhaps Alice Cooper is popular, because he is different.

The entire evening, which was opened with a group called Phlorescent Leach and Eddie, was a journey of the mind in sound and light.

The first act featured the band formerly known as "The Mothers" and highlighted Mark Vollman and Howard Kaylan who started their musical careers with The Turtles. As revealed on a recent Tom Campbell show, The Turtles disbanded due to the fact that they could no longer live with each other as friends rather than the fact that they no longer felt that they could produce musically.

In any event, Vollman and Kaylan progressed from The Turtles to The Mothers and now to the present group. I personally feel that they need to develop new material if they are to progress from being a warm-up band to being a feature band. The show in the Deutschlandhalle was filled with old Mothers material and Turtles songs and didn't reflect the fact that they are a "new" band.

Alice Cooper was all they said he was going to be. Alice opened his act with an obvious show of contempt for the audience by spitting at the members of the audience. From this to the final encore, their new hit single "Elected," the show was one constant visual trip after another. You can read and hear all you want to about Alice and his pet snake, but to actually see him (her?) wrap this large boa constrictor around him and stick its head into his mouth and do all of the other strange things he does with it, has to be seen to be believed.

Concerning the act with the switchblade knife, the band plays music from West Side Story while Alice plays with a switchblade, and finally cuts his leg. This points out that Alice is more powerful than the audience which he is in total control of from the moment he walks on stage. The rest of the act consists of Alice being lynched and hung from a gallows, throwing posters of the group into the audience, and throwing gigantic balloons filled with feathers into the crowd.

The use of crowd mastery in rock music is becoming more and more obvious, from Mick Jagger to David Bowie to Alice Cooper and to be perfectly honest with you I am not quite sure what it represents. I think a lot of people would like to dismiss the whole subject by saying that Alice Cooper and all the rest are just an act and you pay your money to watch your freak show and go home for the evening.

To me it is a whole lot more involved than that. It involves things like crowd psychology and the extent to which we are looking for a messiah to show us the way to some higher understanding of ourselves and the universe. I can't say what is in your mind but I would like to ask you to take a deeper look at a group like Alice Cooper the next time you see them or read about them or hear their records.

Until next week, Peace and Power to the People.

December Weather

Frontal systems frequently pass through Berlin from the west or the northwest during December, bringing a cool maritime air mass into Germany; hence weather conditions are usually overcast, damp and cold. Skies are broken or overcast 81% of the time, and the average relative humidity is 86% — the highest of the year for both. The temperature is about 7 degrees lower than in November, and December's mean daily maximum and minimum are 37° F and 31° F respectively. Record temperatures for the month were 60° F and -5° F. The record high temperature was recorded in 1961, the low in 1969. Occasionally, cool, dry, continental air sweeps into Berlin from the north or east; a weather situation resulting in clear skies and temperatures between 0° F and 20° F.

Normally, about 1.6 inches of precipitation occur in December, which is about the same as during November except a greater chance for snow. About 14 days in December have either rain or snow, with 2 inches of snow likely during the month.

Both driving and flying become more hazardous. The combination of rain or snow with freezing temperatures causes ice to form on roads with little warning. Heavy fog conditions will occur on an average of nine days.

What Are You Worth?

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Have you ever wondered how much Uncle Sam spends to maintain and support you for one year as a member of the Army.

After some figuring, the Department of the Army came up with the following statistics:

Commissioned officers — $22,145 each per year.

Warrant officers — $18,931 each per year.

Enlisted men — $10,116 each per year.

The average cost per soldier is $11,718 per year.

Taken into account in the tabulation were pay and allowances; permanent change of station costs; training costs such as post exchange purchases and legal advice; and certain Department of Defense costs such as benefits to survivors, educational benefit costs and income tax adjustment costs.

Self-Help Class

Learn To Help Yourself

by Vincent A. Drosdik, III

Have a drafty window? Leaky faucet? Squeaky or loose door? Plugged up toilet? Ripped screen? Well, don't put in a work order to get it fixed if you're living in government housing or billets. Don't hold your breath waiting for someone else to fix them.

Those little problems, and many other similar minor ones, are your responsibility to deal with. You are provided with the simple supplies and instructions needed to do repair work and you in turn provide the manpower, using common tools.

Let's face it — it would be prohibitively expensive to have people from the Engineer and Installations Divisions do all these small jobs. So it's up to us to do them.

According to the E&I Division Self Help brochure, which is given to all occupants of government housing and to all troop units and activities in Berlin, Self Help seeks to get the most of available manpower by encouraging all of us to do our share. The program is not limited solely to repair work. Here's how it is broken down:

● Performing simple maintenance and repair work

Each unit should provide part-time self help maintenance teams. These teams are supposed to do simple repair work using common tools, with the object of getting to problems early before they become too big and require putting in a work order to E&I to get it rectified. E&I trains these teams and provides them with the needed supplies.

● Conservation of Utilities

Water, electricity, heating — let's not waste these needlessly. So here we are supposed to check radiator valves for proper adjustment, water faucets if they leak, etc. Also, conserve our use of water and electricity.

● Following good housekeeping practices

As we all know, our secondary or third MOS is janitor, or so it seems from basic training and GI parties. There's a good reason for cleaning regularly, as we all know deep down in our hearts — it's for our health. Also, by cleaning regularly, fewer problems develop such as clogged drains and related items.

● Improving living conditions in troop areas

If your unit wants to improve its recreational facilities, it had best check first with E&I about it, as most interior wood construction is now prohibited by the Army. E&I can help your unit in the planning and construction of any improvement project.

● Notifying E&I Division for appropriate action work beyond the scope of the Self Help Program

The Self Help Class

Recently started at the E&I Compound have been Self Help Classes, led and organized by the Self Help NCO, Staff Sergeant Robert H. Latimer. The program started being formed last June and classes started in November. They are held in Building 872A on the second floor each Wednesday 9-11 a.m.

In the class, conducted very informally so that questions may be raised and comments given, all aspects of the over-all Self Help Program are explained. Latimer uses audio-visual aids extensively to demonstrate how to make repairs, maintain the housing and billets, conserve utilities, etc. He shows how to use various tools, as can be seen in the adjoining photographs.

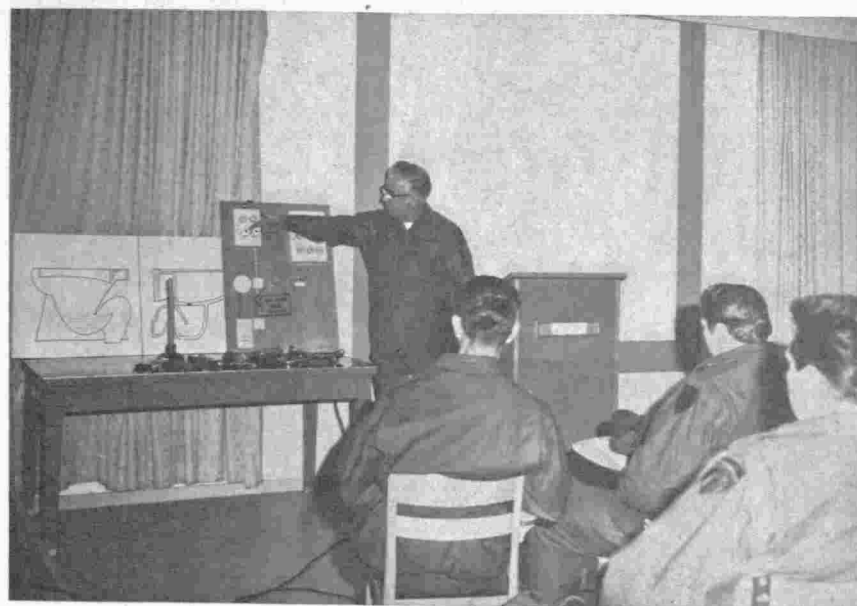

A movie is also shown at the end of the classromm instruction. I sat in on the last 15 minutes and expected to be bored by a "typical" Army film. But quite to the contrary, some very useful information on simple repair work was presented in a clear, understandable manner. For all of you who are all thumbs, or thought you were, the class and movie should help greatly.

The last 15 minutes of the two-hour period is a quick tour of the E&I Compound by Latimer showing the various shops—carpentry, metal, electrical and glazing among others.

If you want to attend the class, or have any questions about Self Help, then call SSG Latimer at 6539. He'll be glad to help you help yourself or get your help in keeping your housing in good repair.

Climbers Attack Triumvirate

the climbers (such as ice axes, ropes, and crampons), the rest of the items for cold weather were purchased by the individuals and included such items as wool clothing, stoves for cooking, and wind suits. Each man now had a personal investment in the future success of the venture.

Each man also had thoughts on the upcoming expedition. Expressed PFC Phillip Bilodeau, "Of course all of us are excited to make this attempt. However, the weather will play an important factor in our success. Our men and equipment are ready for the test, we only hope the weather will allow us the opportunity to complete the climbs on the three selected mountains in the Bernese Oberland."

Added PFC Michael Hurley, "The proposed site selected for our base camp is located high above the small village of Grindelwald, near the saddle which is called the Jungfrau Yoke. The spot is between the Jungfrau and Eiger Mountains. The high base camp will be used for the six to seven days of bivouac in the snow fields. The location is necessary to shorten the critical time factor in making the initial approaches to the climbs. The difference of only one hour's time, lost or gained, in the mountains can make the difference between success or failure in an attempt."

They Leave Tonight

Tonight, the men begin the first part of their trip south as they leave for Frankfurt. Their bags are packed and the climbers are wondering what will be in store for them, as they try for three peaks: the Mönch, the Eiger, and the Jungfrau.

The members of the party are: CPT Dennis MacVittie, 1LT Rudolf Siegesmund, SP4 Gary Diercks, PFC Phillip Bilodeau, PFC Michael Hurley and PFC Patrick Tracey, all of the 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry, Berlin Brigade.

German Sports Medal

33 In Brigade Pass Several-Event Test

by 2LT Mike Dunn

A two-time winner, a family of recipients, a youthful middle aged gentleman, a 60-year old German Police official — what do all these and 28 other people from Berlin Brigade have in common? If you answered a warm feeling deep in their heart and a touch of exuberant pride then you must already know of their accomplishment. In Berlin Brigade today 33 recipients of the German Sports Medal walk a bit taller at the mention of this coveted award for athletic achievement.

On November 20 in an awards ceremony at the Rotunda, BBde Headquarters, the German Sports Medal was presented to 33 Berlin Brigade individuals by Brigadier General Raymond O. Miller, brigade commander, and his German Police counterpart, Herr Scharff.

The two time recipient of the award was John Thomas of 3/6. The family awards went to Klaus Meyer, his wife Edith and daughter Gabrielle. The youthful middle-aged gentleman was Mr. Michael Fay, principal at the TAR School. The 60-year old German Police official? — of course, this was Herr Scharff, who has qualified for the German Sports Medal each year for the past 40 years.

The German Sports Medal itself is a measure of athletic skills that range from distance and sprint runs and swims to the more intricate events such as throwing the shotput or participating in the high jump or broad jump. The standards required vary depending upon an individual's age and sex. However, all the standards are challenging.

In terms of numbers, 3/6 had 12 people receive the award — giving them a headstart towards winning the wandering trophy. This is presented in April to the battalion with the greatest number of German Sports Medal winners from the previous year. April is not far away now and where normally there is no winter German Sports Medal season, January 1973 will see a new opportunity for Brigade "jocks." Four days each month will be set aside from January to March for indoor testing. Dates and details will be publicized when they become available. Perhaps you can be in that small minority of Brigade personnel who can walk a bit taller for one of their accomplishments while in Berlin. It's worth thinking about!

Canoeing Gets a Start in Berlin

Anyone interested in canoeing should call Lt. Kiningham at 3456/3495 for all the available information on starting a canoeing program for the American military in Berlin. The program is just getting underway and a showing of interest would boost the project along. Of course, with few facilities for canoeing in the city, travel to scenic parts of Europe will be a feature of the organization. Put that in your canoe and row it.

Officials, Referees Get it Together

Despite the many differences from one sport to another there is a constant, someone must impartially watch the action and enforce the rules. An organization for these umpires, referees, judges, officials etc, is being formed here. On December 6 a general meeting for a sport officiating organization will be held at 7 p.m. at the AYA House. No prior experience is required, it's open to all including hecklers who are wasting their perfect vision by sitting in the stands being critical. If you can't make the meeting call SFC John Shelton, sports officials coordinator, at 819-6524.

Cross-Country Ski Program Begins

Cross-country skiing is a very strenuous sport, which is just the reason competitive skiers will want more information on the U. S. Army, Berlin Cross-Country Ski Team. To be prepared for the German Army Ski Championships at Garmisch (from February 17 to 22) the Berlin team will leave for the practice slopes in January. That means anywhere from four to eight weeks of TDY or ADMIN LEAVE. Interested competitive skiers should call 1LT Gavin at 3226/3247 or (after duty hours) at 318-8532.

Billeting arrangements may be made by writing the GRA Billeting Office, ATTN: Pre-Christmas Bowling, APO 09053 or by calling Garmisch Military 757 or 557.

Enlisted members of the Army and Air Force may apply for Ski Patrol duty. All applications must arrive at the AFRC by Jan. 5, 1973. The training class will be conducted from Jan. 15 through Jan. 19.

Applications for the winter duty may be submitted on an Army disposition form or by letter as outlined in USAREUR Regulation 28-157 or USAFE Regulation 215-19. The applications are to be sent to: Commanding Officer, AFRC, ATTN: Sergeant Major, APO 09053.

BAAA Rallies Round the Auto

by Jim Strickland

"Rally" is the current big word with the Berlin American Auto Association, and the season has begun. Held on November 18th, the Turkey Rally (or as you prefer the Queen's English, "Rallye") was quite an event, with beginners placing up with experienced drivers and navigators, one driver/navigator team (husband and wife), getting lost on the course but still coming up winners and one team running out of gas and still finishing in the running.

Taking first place was the team of Dale West, driver and Dave Shepherd, navigator. West had never driven a rally before, but had the benefit of an experienced navigator. A husband-wife team, Dan and Karlan Shelton took second place. Neither of the Shelton's had driven a rally before and Karlan was bubbling with their success while Dan just smiled at the announcement. Third place was nailed down by Dick Marsh and his navigator, Art Clark, in Marsh's VW Bus.

The object of the rally was to run the course two times, trying to match the second run time as closely as possible to the first run time. Two hidden checkers were spotted along the route, recording car numbers and the exact times the participants passed their checkpoints.

All the navigators, "fessing" up after their runs were completed, admitted they got lost at least once, but managed to get back onto the right track. The team that got lost and made it through the course came out winners after all, winning the turkey in a drawing at the conclusion of the rally: that team was John and Haija Rees.

If you're wondering how someone could win if they got lost, consider this case, remembering that the elapsed time was the factor that decided who won: One husband and wife team (with the husband driving and the wife navigating; not the recommended situation), the husband took a wrong turn, not wanting to take directions from his wife, and got lost. After about forty minutes of driving hither and yon, they finally got back onto the right street again and continued. On their second run, the wife purposely directed him on the same "lost" course on purpose, and their time came extremely close to that of their first run.

The Turkey Rally was the brainstrom of Jim Strickland, Vice-President of the BAAA and Rick Westerman. Assisting with checkpoints and registration were Dave Stewart, John and Belinda Alkire, Darellyes Premont and Mitch Draeger.

Response to this first rally conducted by the BAAA has been excellent, and the club is currently setting up a December rally in answer to the many requests. To be a rally suitable for beginners as well as the more experienced rallyists in the community, the event is scheduled for the 17th of December and will get underway from the main gate parking lot at Andrews Barracks (at the flagpole). Registration will be held from noon to 1 p.m., with a driver/navigator meeting with officials to answer all the questions between 1 and 1:30. The first car will leave the starting point at 1:30. Drivers will be required to show their POV license and car registration when they register for the rally.

WHAT IS A SMILE? Charles Bronson asks one of the bandits in Chato's Land. Although the number three rated movie in Europe in a recent magazine survey, you judge for yourself as to the quality of this motion picture. Some say it stars Bronson and that is enough.

Cinemas Grab Top Movie In Europe as Walt Disney Passes

by Ray Stahl

Those three keys to big-time movie making, profanity, violence, and nudity, take charge of the local theatres this coming week. No wonder Walt Disney decided to pass this week up.

CHATO'S LAND starts things off in a movie story of 12 bad guys attempting to evoke more than one facial expression from Charles Bronson. (If you have seen Bronson's previous films, you already know the futility of any attempts of such magnitude.) Popular song and dance man Jack Palance co-stars and does his famous tap dancing routine on the forehead of one of the movie's lesser characters.

A man behind bars hears that his wife has been unfaithful and breaks out of prison to put a finish to her. SITTING TARGET stars Oliver Reed and the lovely and/or talented Jill St. John. The real plus may be the Browns last-second win over the Chargers in the NFL Highlights that precede the feature.

Some good action photography of the Grand National stock car circuit provide the high spots for CORKY, a poignant love story of a car mechanic and his car-buretor. Robert Blake and the always popular Charlotte Rampling star in this cinema classic. Gentleman, start your engines.

PRETTY MAIDS ALL IN A ROW, returning for its second tour on the circuit, is about love, laughs, murder, and football at good old Oceanfront High School. Rock Hudson, Terry Savalas and Angie Dickinson have the feature roles but this movie is back due to the most unbelievable high school girls you'll ever see (all refugees from the Miss Universe contest). Director Roger Vadim keeps enough of them on the screen that even if you don't like the story you probably won't care anyway. College football highlights open the program.

Charlton Heston, man of many costumes, returns in one of his finest roles, Moses, in THE TEN COMMANDMENTS to wrap-up this week's movie bill. If he has seen any of the other films this week, Chuck will probably be adding a few more commandments to the ones he already has. The picture is truly a classic and if you have not seen it, here is a good opportunity.

Foreign Food A Specialty at AFRCs

Cotoletta alla Parmigiana, Rindsroulade, Terryaki, Tostadas, and Escargots Bourguignonne — code words for a secret movement? Not at all — these are just some of the many dishes available at Armed Forces Recreation Center's specialty restaurants in Berchtesgaden and Garmisch.

The AFRC has two restaurants serving Italian style cuisine, the Green Arrow Inn in Garmisch and the Alpine Inn in Berchtesgaden; two with Bavarian specialties, Skytop Lodge in Berchtesgaden and General Patton Hotel in Garmisch.

Garmisch also has the International Grill which serves specialties from around the world. Its menu lists dishes from Japan, Great Britain, Austria, Hungary, Spain and France.

Also in Garmisch are the El Toro Room at the Sheridan Plaza featuring Mexican style food and the Cordon d'Or restaurant at the General Von Steuben Hotel which features French cuisine of the highest calibre.

Not all of the AFRC restaurants in the two recreation areas specialize in foreign foods — all hotels have dining rooms offering the more familiar dishes from hamburgers to steaks.

For reservations at one of the AFRC hotels write the GRA Billeting Office, APO 09053 or the BRA Billeting Office, APO 09108. You may also telephone for reservations, B'gaden Mil (2538) 823 or 623 and Garm Mil (2535) 757 or 557.

Rules On Spiked Tires

Spiked mud and snow tires can be used within Germany only when mounted on all four wheels of the vehicle according to a recent ruling by the German Federal Republic.

Dangerous skids caused by "mixed tires" mounted on cars prompted passage of the safety precaution. Spiked tires can be legally used on German roads from Nov. 15, 1972 through March 15, 1973. The speed limit for cars with spiked tires is 100 km per hour on the autobahn.

Small oval decals designating the 100 km speed limit must be displayed on the rear of all vehicles mounted with spiked tires.

All customers who have spiked tires mounted at European Exchange System garages will be furnished a decal at no charge.

Christmas Mart for Shoppers

I don't know about you, but for me it's a bit of a shock that today's date is December 1. It doesn't seem all that long ago that it was Easter ... (for me anyway) and now it's time to think about the million and one things to ready for Christmas. Of course, all those packages to the States have been mailed?! Well, if you are still trying to decide what to send or haven't any ideas for the loved ones here, one place to visit is the annual Christmas Mart around the Funkturm.

Like everything connected with this "merry season", the Mart, too, has become commercialized. But there are always enough pretty corners left to make it worth a visit. The toy collection of Gertrud Weinhold displays pictures of Christmas from all over the world in a most charming manner. This year her many, many folk art items will be set up under the motto "Festive Parade of the Dolls and Toy Animals from all over the World." This is only a look-but-not-buy-section, so you can catch up on the money spending quite quickly.

Polish Woodcarvings

If you are prepared to dig a little deeper into your pockets, you might come home with an original wood carving from the Polish carver, Henryk Zagadlo, whose works are on display and for sale. Then there are a great many sales stands of pretty hand-made items, gobs of sweets, and a multitude of junk — but then some want junk ...

Since this is supposed to be a special time for children, the Mart does offer a big program for them. There will be a magician, puppet as well as "real" theater performances, a huge model railroad, a book corner, kitchens where they can bake cookies, corners for painting and handicrafts, a children's railroad, ponies and, of course, a lot of carnival rides.

The Christmas Mart will open its gates tomorrow, Dec. 2, at 10 a.m. and will remain open until Dec. 17, weekdays from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. and weekends from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. But you can't just walk in ... adults pay DM 2 admission and children DM 1.

Now if you belong to the last of the big spenders (or to the mob known as the "lookers"), you'll head off in the direction of the Philharmonie, to the "Esplanade" on Bellevuestrasse to be exact. What's going on there? "Antiqua 72" will make mouths of antique hunters water from today until December 5. Not only will you discover precious rarities with many zeros in the price but also loveable oddities, which are more quaint than expensive (but not to be compared with junk!). It's helpful to know that 50% of the items on display cost less than DM 500.

With 46 antique dealers spreading their wares over some 2,000 square meters, there will be a lot of looking to do. By the way, not everything is a true antique (according to custom laws an antique must be at least 100 years old), which is good news, because the turn of the century brought some of the most adorable things into the living room.

You can visit today from 1 to 9 p.m. and Dec. 2-5, from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Haensel and Gretel Opera

Before I get too far off the Christmas angle, I want to call your attention to the Dec. Program of the Berlin Opera. With the young ones in mind, they have put the fairy tale opera "Haensel and Gretel" quite often on their playbill. This Sunday, Dec. 3, performances start at 3 and 7:30 p.m. Then two weeks later, Dec. 16, it plays at 7:30 p.m. and again at 3 p.m. on the 17th.

This production of that famous Grimm fairy tale is really very pretty and can be the first "big opera experience" for your children. You can make ticket reservations at the ticket agency in the PX.

If you've been to Prague, you've surely been to one performance of the "Black Theater". Those unfamiliar with it need not think that a Negro ensemble is at work here. The "Black Theater" derives its name from the black velvet suits the actors wear, which makes them invisible to the audience. Now don't think that the audience stares onto a vacant stage. Quite to the contrary, the most unusual things happen on the stage of a "Black Theater." Objects which normally lead a still, unmoving existence ... clothes, furniture, playthings ... come to life. By now you have probably guessed that the actors in the black velvet suits are behind all this. But don't think you can imagine the fun that comes out of the dark, you just have to see it.

Fortunately, a trip to Prague is not necessary because the famous theater has now planted groups in several other cities. One of these "offsprings" is the "Velvets" with their home base in Wiesbaden. The "Velvets", in Berlin this weekend, will amuse and delight crowds in the Urania Haus tonight and tomorrow night at 8 p.m. The Urania Haus is just a few steps away from the KaDeWe passage. Should you not want to chance getting tickets at the door, rush over to the PX ticket agency. It should be mentioned that this type of theater fun has no language barriers. There is only action understandable to all (do bring older children, too).

The Crooked Theater

A little bit on the same line is the fun that awaits you in the big red box on Wittenbergplatz (across from the KaDeWe). Here, two fellows from Switzerland, Albert LeVice and Dominique Thommy, display sketches with situations and reflections in a simple yet fascinating kind of way. The "Crooked Theater", as it is called, is touring Europe as the first driveable theater and has been a big hit wherever it has performed. You can come and have a hearty laugh or a little smile daily until December 15 at 8 p.m. (except Sunday and Monday). Don't worry about cold feet, the little place is well heated. The DM 6, 8 or 10 you spend for the evening are surely worth it. Here also, no need to worry about language.

Community Observations
