E & I's Night Service

by KATHY WALSH

It's around nine o'clock on a busy Saturday night for the Emergency Service of the Engineer and Installation Division (E & I). Sitting at the Work Order desk, wondering when the next call will come in is Staff Sergeant Ellis Edwards, the Night Duty Foreman. He doesn't have long to wait. "My refrigerator is broken, the light's out, and the ice cream is melting," cries the voice on the other end of the line, "you've got to come out and fix it!" SSG Edwards smiles to himself, and asks the caller whether A) the light bulb had been checked to see if it had burned out B) the fuse box was checked and C) the refrigerator is plugged into the socket. "Well, uh, no," is his reply. The caller is asked to check these things, and call back. Ten minutes later the phone rings again. "I guess the dog pulled the plug out, sorry," comes sheepishly over the phone. Click.

Had there actually been something wrong with the caller's refrigerator, SSG Edwards would have loaned the caller a small, temporary refrigerator (or freezer) for overnight use, and dispatched a mechanic to the caller's residence the next day to repair the broken refrigerator and pick up the temporary one.

E & I has two such temporary refrigerators for use to members of the Berlin-American community, but does not have the facilities for fixing refrigerators at night.

"I've locked myself out of my quarters, is there anything you can do?" is the problem posed by the next call. SSG Edwards instructs the caller to phone the Military Police at 3512. The MPs will then dispatch a patrol car to E & I to pick up emergency keys, check the caller's name against a master roster of names and apartments, and then go unlock the caller's apartment. The MPs will not, however, give the caller the emergency keys, and if the caller has lost his keys, a locksmith will be sent to the caller's apartment to change the locks, at the caller's expense. This service is available to the Berlin-American community on a 24-hour basis.

These are just a few examples of what goes on during E & I's Emergency Service, available to the community from 4:30-10 p.m. daily and 7:30 a.m.-10 p.m. on week-ends. An electrician and plumber are on standby after 10 p.m. to take care of any emergencies that might occur at that time.

Emergencies can be anything from reporting a fire to pumping out basements during rainy seasons to checking out furnaces that have gone out. Not to mention broken water pipes and short-circuits. According to Staff Sergeant Lawrence Zarrilli, Self-Help NCO and former Night Duty Foreman, "our two workers average about eight hours a night, answering as many as 21-26 calls. After a call comes in, we get a vehicle from Transportation Motor Pool and make out the work order. Response time is from an hour to an hour and a half."

One of the things SSG Zarrilli stressed to the community was regarding the reporting of a fire. "When reporting a fire, give the address of the fire, not the address from where the call was made. We had a case of a man calling in a fire, giving the wrong address, and consequently the assistance went to the wrong address." With Fire Prevention Safety Week just ending, that's a good tip to follow.

In case any emergencies occur that E & I can help with, call 6646 and either SSG Edwards or Staff Sergeants Joseph Fluellen or Julio R. Gonzales-Cordero will be glad to render assistance.

Mailing deadlines near

by LOU A. KIRKPATRICK

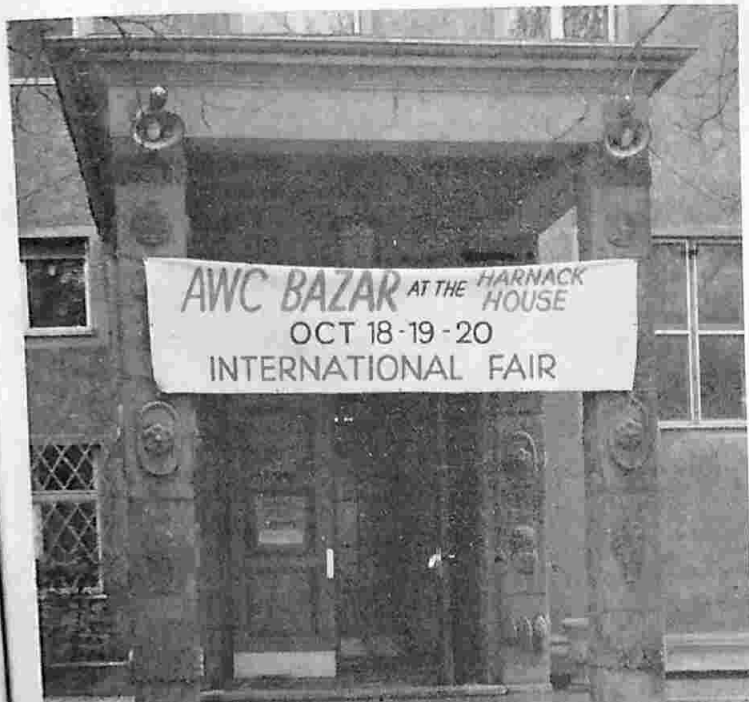

With the Christmas season fast approaching it is time once again for soldiers and their families to busy themselves buying gifts. Stores grow crowded with shoppers and passers-by can be heard humming Christmas carols.

It's a pity what happens every year when people don't get their bundles in the mail soon enough to reach loved ones on the big day. The Department of Defense and USAREUR are trying their best to inform soldiers overseas of the latest possible mailing dates.

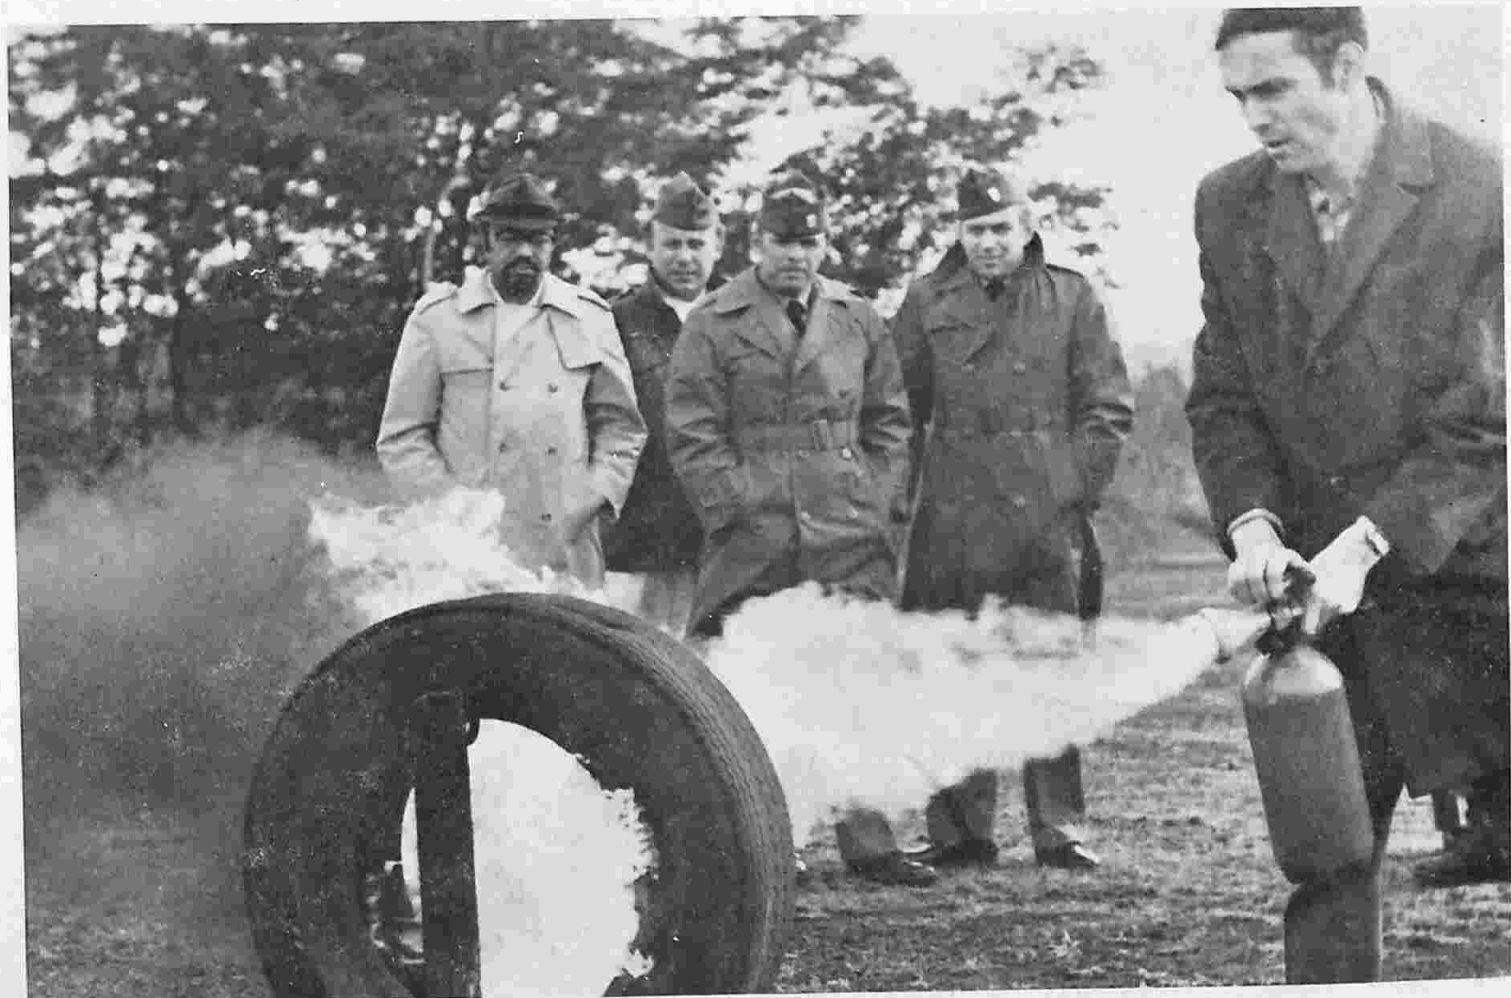

Space Available Mail, (SAM), parcels weighing a maximum of 70 lbs. and not exceeding 100 inches full measure should be mailed before November 26. SAM letters, tapes, greeting cards, and postcards have a deadline of December 10. Parcel Air Lift, (PAL), packages have a $1.00 fee attached to them, should weigh no more than 30 lbs. and not exceed 60 inches total measure, should be posted before Dec. 1. Airmail letters, tapes, greeting cards, and postcards have until Dec. 17 at the latest. Airmail parcels, with a maximum of 70 lbs., should be mailed before Dec. 10.

Parcel Air Lift and Space Available Mail offer the cheapest, yet prompt service. All recommended dates are the last possible days to mail and expect delivery by Christmas Day. Normally, patrons should mail one to two weeks before these dates. Postal patrons ordering from the European Exchange System Mail-A-Gift service should allow an additional 14 days for processing and shipment of orders.

In the past the volume of mail processed through USAREUR increased about 200 per cent from November 1 through Christmas Day. To help ease the burden, military community commanders provide APOs with additional personnel, transportation, and workspace on a temporary basis, from October 31 to January 15, 1975.

YES, FOLKS, THIS IS THE PLACE. The American Wives Club Berlin will hold their Bazaar at the Harnack House this weekend. Today, the bazaar will officially open at noon with Brigadier General R. Dean Tice, Commander, Berlin Brigade, cutting the ribbon. Wares for sale during the bazaar include china, rugs, furs, jewelry, and wooden Christmas ornaments. Tomorrow, the bazaar will be open from 10 a.m.-9 p.m., and Sunday from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. (Photo by Rich Bailey)

Köln - an old city with new ideas

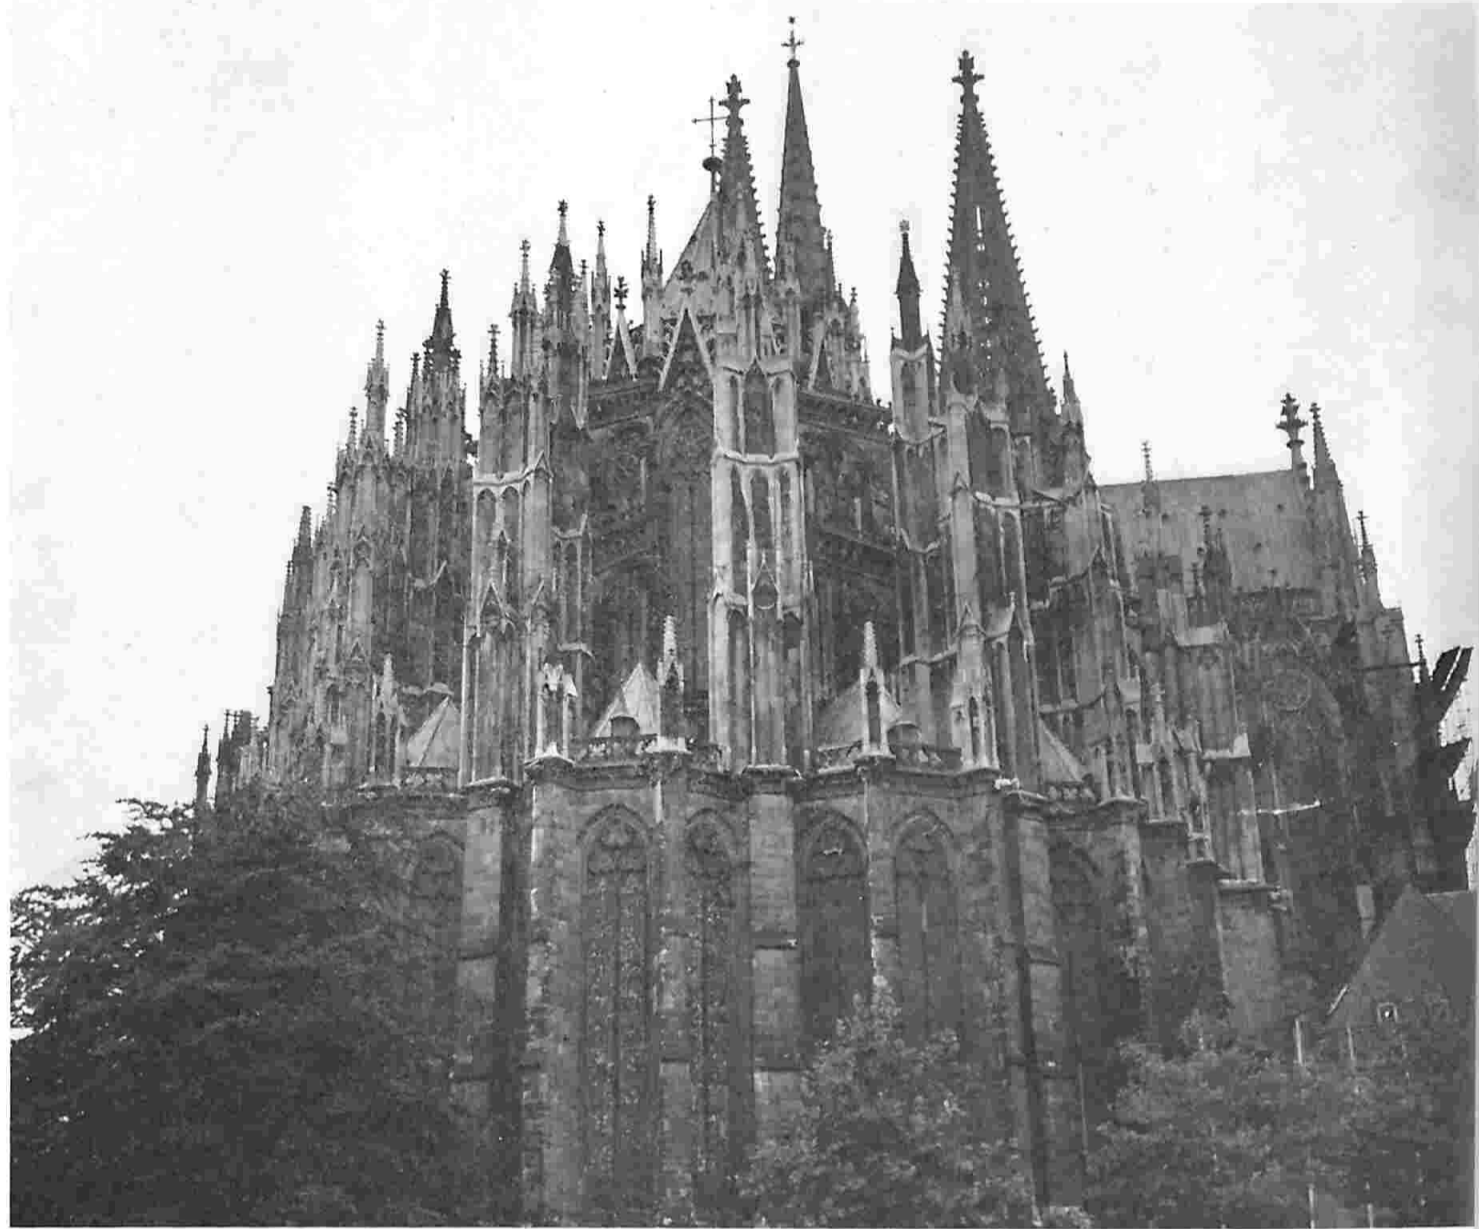

Köln — or Cologne, as it is to the rest of the world — is a special city in Germany. With a recorded history beginning approximately 55 B. C., Cologne was a border defense village of the Roman Empire with all of the conveniences of a Roman Town — water system, temples, palaces and baths. Residents of Cologne at this time even enjoyed central air heating. It is from this period that Cologne first became known as a city of culture — a condition that the modern city of Cologne still enjoys.

Although the Cologne of today is almost totally new (90% of the inner city was destroyed in WW II) the past is still strong in this city. Most apparent is the rebuilt Dom, Cologne's most famous landmark. It is also apparent in the street plan's of the inner city, that little has been changed from the Roman times. This intermixing of new and old has been a continuous facet of Cologne.

Going to Cologne is no problem, even if you only have a weekend or 3-day pass. There are several planes a day to the city, costing you less than an hour's travel time. If you don't want to pay the fee for this, a second alternative is the Duty Train. Get off in Kassel or Hannover and switch to the Bundesbahn for the rest of the trip. A third alternative is to take the train all the way to Frankfurt, and then on to Cologne via Bonn and the Rhein route. The last route is my favorite as it is one of the most scenic, but the cost is 88 DM for a First Class round trip ticket.

A first concern when you get to any city is where to stay while you are visiting. One of the easiest things to do is book a room through American Express, but if you aren't happy with their selection of hotels, wait until you get to Cologne. About five minutes walk from the station in Cologne is the Verkehrsamt or tourist office. They have complete listings of all available lodging, including any private rooms that are available at the time.

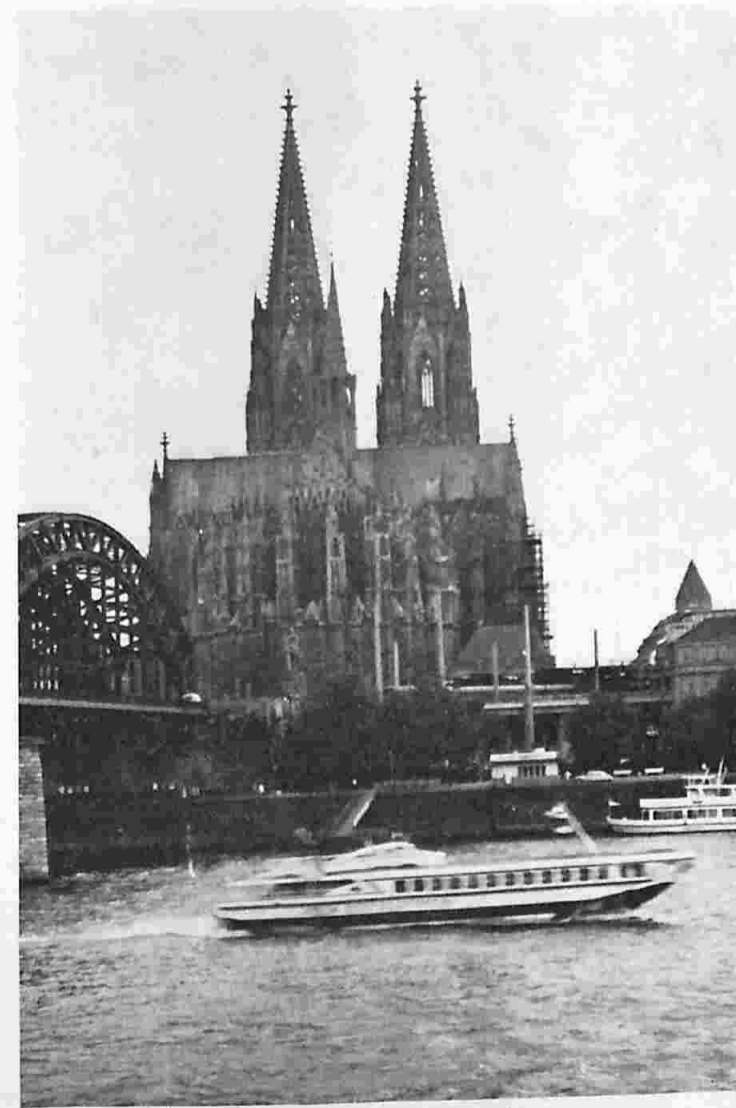

You're in Cologne, and have a place to stay for the night, now what. A start would be to see some of the sights. As you leave the Verkehrsamt the one thing you see first is the Cologne Dom. In fact, you went around the Dom to get to the tourist office, since it is built right alongside the train station. I recommend you start your tour of Cologne right here — the earlier the better since this is the rendezvous for almost every one who visits or

Cologne for over 2000 years — and so it remains today, with the Kaufhof (built in 1914 as the largest department store in the world) still standing. There are four other large department stores along this street, and tucked amongst them is a store from home — MacDonal'd's and his state-side hamburgers (they haven't changed them either, a piece of meat, a bun, and just enough dressing to keep you from dying of thirst). Other sights along Hohe Strasse include the Rathaus (parts of which date from 1567) and two churches called St. Maria, one dating from 1175 and the other from 1809.

Enough, I can go on about the sights of Cologne all day. Rather than me tell you about them, go and see them yourself.

lives in Cologne. A quick tour of the Dom will take over an hour — but you could spend six or seven hours just looking at all the stained glass windows. The Dom dates back to 1248, when the first stone was laid for its construction and since that date construction on the cathedral has never ceased. Even today when you visit, they are still working on it, although now the work is more along the lines of restoration than outright construction.

In order to clear the congestion present in most modern cities, Cologne is in the process of creating pedestrian areas in its center. One of the first of these is just to your right as you leave the Dom, and the pedestrian area will carry you all the way to Neu Markt, a distance of almost a kilometer. Hohe Strasse is the name of the first part of this street, and in its own right it is also famous. The present Hohe Strasse is built over what has been the main thoroughfare and merchants street of

The crowd—America in microcosm—gathers to gaze in silence at the sentry walking his lonely post and a simple ceremony that marks the changing of the guard. Among them are farmers from the Midwest, steel workers, ranchers, bearded Amish men in broad brimmed hats, people in shorts, T-shirts or business suits, students in their way-out clothes, housewives clutching the hands of their children, white and black, American Indian and Spanish-speaking visitors from the Southwest—they come from all over the country.

"I can't believe so many are buried here"—a well-dressed man of 25.

A young black man says: "This to me is America."

An older woman holding her young daughter—"This represents serenity and sacrifice."

A little girl of eight remarks, "I wonder why people mean and want to shoot other people."

A pretty young woman: "A monument to death."

Others are struck by the beauty. A young black woman whispers—"This is a beautiful place for the dead."

An elderly man: "My son could have been buried here but it's too far from our home."

A young woman thinks aloud, "Wars are costly."

Words alone do not express their thoughts as they turn once again to the lonely soldier pacing his post with measured steps.

Soon, the crowd will be gone. The sun will go down but the soldier will still pace his post until relieved by another. Day after day, through sun and storm, winter and summer, year after year, a grateful Nation pays tribute to its honored dead.

"On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread
And Glory guards with silent round
The bivouac of the dead."

Vikings, Nebraska top in leagues

"OOF, THAT ONE HURT." The Bantam and Junior AYA Football Leagues play games every Saturday and Sunday, weather permitting. The boys are young but play hard exciting games.

The AYA girls flag football teams engaged in a Columbus Day double header last Monday. The Bears upset the Sonics in the first game and the Rams captured their second win of the season and possession of first place with a victory over the Jets. The flag football program for girls is the first of its kind in Berlin and although it has not attracted the crowd that the boy's football program has, it will be a success and should remain a permanent fixture in the Berlin American Community. Future games are scheduled for 4 p.m. October 22 and 24 with another double header October 26. The season will end with games November 1 and 2.

Last Saturday the Oklahoma Sooners and USC Trojans fought a stiff defensive battle which ended in a scoreless tie. In Saturday's second game, the Grambling Tigers defeated the Alabama Crimson Tide 20-0. In the final game the Notre Dame offense racked up 46 points, while their defense shut-out the Texas Longhorns. Their 46-0 victory over Texas was the highest score of any team in the league this season and established the Irish as the high scoring team for the season with a total of 98 points.

Next week's games, which will mark the end of the 1974 Bantam League Season, will start at 12 a.m. Sunday. The Alabama Crimson Tide will face the Nebraska Cornhuskers in the opener. Alabama has not won a game all season, and is hungry for a victory in their final game. Nebraska is in first place, and a victory will wrap up the season championship for them. Alabama is a much improved team and is capable of the upset of the season. Texas and Oklahoma have almost equal records. Texas is four games out of first with a 1-4-0 record and Oklahoma has a 1-3-1 record. Each team has scored a total of 20 points for the season. The teams will play out the traditional stateside Texas-Oklahoma rivalry and not without some coincidental sidenotes. Carl Underwood, the Bantam Texas coach, is a former University of Oklahoma student.

Notre Dame (3-1-1) and Grambling (3-2) also have similar records. A Grambling victory will place them in third and a victory by the Notre Dame Fighting Irish will tie them with USC. A three way tie will exist if Nebraska is defeated this weekend. When the Steelers faced the Vikings last Sunday, it was doubtful they could find 11 uninjured players to field a team. The Steelers did field a team and in the first quarter outplayed the Vikings. Before the first half ended they managed to score a touchdown, but during the second half, the Steelers gave way to fatigue with only one substitute on the bench. The Vikings then ran the score up to 56-6. Doug "Hands" Hansen made several difficult receptions and turned them in to long gains for the Vikings. The Colts defeated the Dolphins in the second game on Sunday. Todd Nelson and Scott scored touchdowns as the Colts won 12-0.

THERE WAS A CLOSE FINISH in the Randmeer Class at the tripartite regatta hosted by the Club Nautique Francais de Tegel last weekend. The American Yacht Club Berlin won the class. (Photo by Almut Shanafield)

The racing team from the American Yacht Club Berlin (AYCB) traveled to the Club Nautique Francais de Tegel (CNFT), last weekend, to participate in the French tripartite regatta. The competition was very tense, with most classes decided by the last race of the regatta. When the final results were tabulated, the members of the British Berlin Yacht Club (BBYC) team were the winners of the Coupe du Ministere Delegue by a narrow margin over the French team. In addition, the BBYC walked off with the top spots in the Finn, Olympic, and 470 classes.

The AYCB was able to come up with a win in the Randmeer class. Bob Buckley, Dagmar Golz, and myself managed to squeak out a slim victory to bring home some silver for our club.

On Saturday evening our French hosts treated us to a huge banquet at the Pavillon du Lac, and followed with a party at their club. Between the races on Sunday, they served another delicious luncheon. The trophy presentations were followed by still another party. We enjoyed the French hospitality very much, and we got to know our Allied friends just a little bit better.

Anyone who has ever sailed at the CNFT knows how pleasant it can be, and we are all looking forward to next year's regatta there.

We are also looking forward to our own tripartite regatta, to be held tomorrow and Sunday. We will be competing against the BBYC and the CNFT for the Commander's Cup. The British have had it for the past couple of years, and we are eager to win it back. We are also planning to wine and dine our competitors this weekend. We hope to be able to reciprocate the kind of hospitality that is always very much in evidence when we visit them.

Kayak Adventure Training -- a job well done

Awards ceremonies, although not rare in the Army, are often considered "old hat" by many of us, but last week an awards ceremony took place that definitely couldn't be placed in this category. Last Thursday British Lieutenant Colonel P. G. S. Tower presented 14 of the men, who crossed the English Channel in kayaks last May with medallions to express the appreciation that the 1st Bn, Coldstream Guards and the British Commander of Berlin felt for the men.

In comments directed to the men just before the presentation, LTC Tower expressed the regret that there had been no representative of the British forces present during the feat. In addition to the individual medals each of the members of the team from Company B, 3rd Bn, 6th Infantry received, he also presented a plaque to 1LT Gary Wright for the group.

The crossing of the English Channel by the B Company team (which included 4 members of the 287th MP Company) took place May 17, with a total time of five hours, 45 minutes from Cape Gis Nez, France to Folkestone, England.

This is the medallion that was presented to the men of Company B, 3rd Bn, 6th Inf.

LTC Tower congratulates Sp4 Orlanda Simpliciano for his part during the kayak adventure training. The men still in line waiting for the colonel are: Sp4 Seth Verbel, Sp4 Richard Faber, Sp4 Ronnie Davis, and Sp4 Noel Rutherford.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR VEHICLE LIGHTING EQUIPMENT WEEK

POV Inspection stations and EES repair shops will check free of charge headlights, taillights, stop lights, turn indicators, windshield wipers, seat belts, brakes and tires

It's your car

The United States Army Europe is participating in the Eighteenth International Motor Vehicle Lighting Equipment Week, October 23-29, which is sponsored by the Federal Traffic Accident Prevention Council (Bundesverkehrswacht) of the Federal Republic of Germany (FRG). The purpose of the international campaign is to encourage motor vehicle owners to prepare their vehicles for fall and winter driving conditions. The Inspection Station, Maintenance Division, Andrews Bks, will check, free of charge, headlights, taillights, stoplights, turn indicators, and windshield wipers of privately owned vehicles belonging to U. S. Forces personnel. A check of brakes and tires will also be included on this free inspection.

In addition to the Maintenance Division participation, the EES garage will check vehicles free of charge during the period October 23-November 29. This will be accomplished in conjunction with normal garage service on a first come, first served, basis.

This courtesy POV inspection is always available at the Maintenance Division Inspection Station. However, it is particularly important that POV's are in top condition with the approach of winter weather. Therefore, in conjunction with the Eighteenth International Motor Vehicle Lighting Equipment Week, commanders at all echelons are requested to brief motor vehicle owners and encourage participation in this campaign.

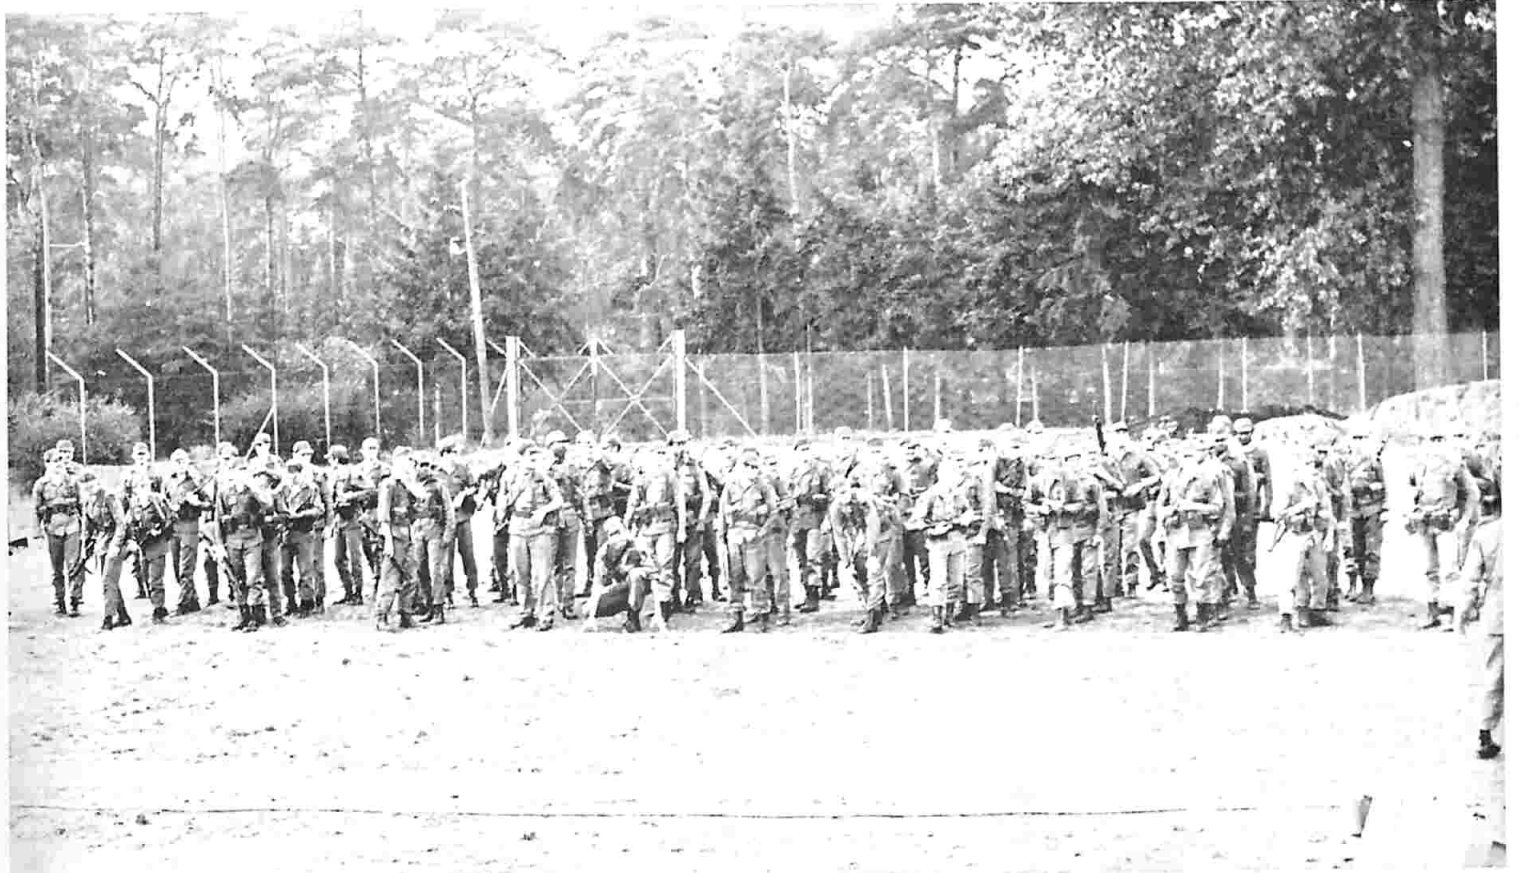

One drink may be enough

HEIDELBERG — Beginning November 1, drivers in the Netherlands whose blood alcohol content is found to be .5 milligrams per milliliter of whole blood will be punished for drunken driving. The present figure is .8, the same as that in Germany.

Dutch police use a breathalyzer to make an initial determination of the blood alcohol content. If indications are that this content is .5 or higher, they may ask the driver to submit to a blood test. Refusal to submit to either of these tests constitutes a separate offense.

Even if blood alcohol content is under .5, Dutch police will be authorized to prohibit a person from driving for up to 12 hours.

Penalties for drunken driving in the Netherlands are up to three months in jail, suspension of driver's license for up to five years, and a fine of up to 10,000 Dutch guilders.

THE CONVERSATION — rated PG. The first prize winner at the Cannes Film Festival describes the chilling activities of a top surveillance expert — a man who will bug anybody for a price. Gene Hackman is a pro who doesn't worry about the consequences of his work until he becomes involved in murder. THE CONVERSATION is timely and thought provoking drama. There is violence, profanity, and some nudity in the film. Also stars Robert Duvall.

FISTS OF FURY — rated R. The Oriental sensation is back in action using his expertise in hand and foot combat to defeat a gang of dope smugglers and save his girlfriend from a life of shame. The non stop action displays some incredible demonstrations of karate and kung fu. There is violence, sex and profanity in the film. Starring Bruce Lee.

THE LAST PORNO FLICK — rated PG. THE LAST PORNO FLICK is a spoof of the latest trend in movies — the respectable skin flick. Two cab drivers find a script for a pornographic film and decide to produce it.

Their adventures in trying to get their show on the screen makes for some amusing situations. Starring Michael Pataki and Robyn Hilton.

BUSTING — rated R. BUSTING catches the action in Los Angeles, its people, police, and its crooks. The streets erupt when Vice Squad cops launch a war against the city's brutal vice lord. The action moves from luxury apartments to gay bars, book stalls, massage parlors, and climaxes in a wild ambulance chase through city streets. Starring Elliot Gould and Robert Blake. Special Short Subject: 1974 NFL Game — Cowboys vs. Eagles.

CAHILL, UNITED STATES MARSHAL — Revival rated PG. The marshal gets back in town to learn that the bank has been robbed and his deputies have been killed. A posse is organized but catching the outlaw is complicated by the involvement of the marshal's young sons in the crime. Rock, opera, aid jazz

Tonight at 9 p.m. "The Big Show '74" is scheduled to begin at the Philharmonic Hall. Three great names in jazz history have been brought together by Norman Ganz: Count Basie, Oscar Peterson and Joe Turner.

While the session at the Philharmonie will undoubtedly attract a somewhat "older" public, you'll have the teens storming the Deutschlandhalle next Thursday. Glittering, glimmering and shining in leather "The Sweet" will attack the eardrums of their young listeners with their rock hits. The English fellows with the high-heeled boots are sure to include "Teenage Rampage," "The Six Teens" and "Little Willy" in their offerings of the evening. Rock over to the Deutschlandhalle before 8 p.m. in order to grab a piece of floor in front of the stage.

And once again I want to draw your attention to a most charming ballet program at the Berlin Opera. The delightful story of the mechanical doll "Coppelia" is on the schedule. This Sunday, you have the opportunity to see "Coppelia" at 3 p.m., which is a good chance to treat your children to an opera visit.

COUNT BASIE, will appear tonight at the Philharmonic Hall at 9 p.m., along with Oscar Peterson and Joe Turner. The Count will appear with his orchestra, and "The Big Show" promises to be a show of shows.

CSC 2-6 in Grafenwoer

by PATRICK RIVETTE

Two jeeps mounted with TOW anti-tank missile launcher of Staff Sergeant Reno's section move along the woodline in a field not far from Grafenwoer, West Germany. Suddenly they spot an enemy tank, the gunner goes into action. The crosshairs on his sight centers on the enemy vehicle and the driver simulates firing by flashing the headlights on the jeep. The section has successfully completed clearing all anti-tank obstacles in its sector, making 2-6 Infantry's chance for success in the attack highly probable.

At Grafenwoer, almost 15 kilometers away Specialist 4 Pharis is peering through his binoculars at enemy tanks. He has just finished adjusting in on the tanks and is waiting for the fire-for-effect. Suddenly the radio crackles: "Shots Over", telling him his rounds are on the way. Next he hears: "Splash Over" and before he can answer the transmission he watches the ground around the target explode as the shells from the 4.2 inch mortar platoon rip up the area. He sees one direct hit and radios the message to the tables which fired the mission: "Cease Fire, End of Mission; Target Destroyed; Estimate Five Casualties".

FIRE! AND THE TOW MISSILE goes sailing down range during Combat Support Company's, 2-6 training at Grafen-

On still another part of Grafenwoer, in a scene reminiscent of the Rat Patrol, jeeps with M-60 machine guns are moving down range on a live fire problem.

Specialist 4 Hunter becomes aware of troops in the open, immediately sights his weapon and the machine gun starts "talking", ripping up the cardboard targets 300 meters away. These are members of the Scout platoon, firing a squad qualification course.

All these scenes were just part of the training completed recently in Grafenwoer, by the Combat Support "HELLCATS" of 2d Battalion 6th Infantry. The company, commanded by CPT John D. Chapla, trained hard to improve their specialized skills necessary to support 2-6 Infantry with reconnaissance, anti-tank and heavy mortar support. The company also received cross training as rifle company soldiers as they supported the battalion squad ATT's as aggressors or participated in various live fire ranges. The TOW Platoon on their missile live fire phase was able to give a good account of the level of proficiency of the "HELLCATS". SP4's Kimbell and Prietto, and PFC Witkowski each fired a missile at a moving target the size of a tank turret 2100 meters away and scored hits! Look out enemy tanks!

The company has now returned to Berlin along with the battalion, content in the knowledge that they can competently perform their combat missions as professionals. Although hoping never to have to show its expertise, the company will have the confidence in its weapons, men, and leaders to do the job.

Playground opens

According to information received by Mr. Borche Chief Engineer of the Schlangbader Strasse construction firm, the indoor playground at Schlangenbader will open today. The indoor playground is furnished with the most modern toy equipment purchased in Denmark. The two inch thick wall-to-wall carpet will provide a convenient and safe play area for children.

In addition it should be mentioned that this indoor playground is of a unique design. Nowhere is there a playground like this one.

The office for the Army Community Services and the public health nurse as well as the office for the project coordinator, Mr. Weber, opened for services Tuesday.

Girl Talk grows up

by LOU KIRKPATRICK

AFN radio has many programs aimed at the working soldier, but what about the wives? Yes, now there is a program for the women in the Army who didn't join.

The program, called "Women's World," is a move forward from last year's "Girl Talk". A few changes have been incorporated into the show, including a new host. Mrs. Ames Latta has stepped up to the mike to replace Nancy Snow.

Mrs. Latta claims, "I'm particularly interested in the woman's view point, especially the economy wives who aren't heard from too often." Mrs. Latta agrees with her co-host SFC Tom Fisher who stated, "I would like the program to become a community forum. Comments from the people are always welcomed."

A few of the topics to be highlighted on the program are interviews with various prominent people such as the high school principal, and other people who influence the daily lives of the military families in Berlin.

However, the program hopes to capture a wide range of interest groups. In a lighter vein, an occasional spot such as "the history of hamburger" will give a couple of minutes of interesting info. Spots like that will help to give the program the informal setting that SFC Fisher and Mrs. Latta are aiming for. Other spots to be used are; "Teaching your child to read," by Dr. Julie Chan, an occasional recipe, and news from the wire on the latest women's lib accomplishment.

The format which began over a year ago in a 10 minute spot called "Listen Ladies" has steadily gained popularity that evolved into "Girl Talk" and now "Women's World". The program is scheduled to begin Oct. 28 at 10:05 a.m.
